Livermore Falls High School as seen in August, 1955, from West Side through the stereoscopic lens of the yearbook camera man.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Essays, written during the year by students on the theme of the 1956 Banner, seemed to yield a dash of this and a smack of that. The student "composite viewpoint" became a sort of Gallup Poll (L. F. H. S. version). Seasoning, spices, a sprinkling of herbs, included with more substantial foodstuffs might seem to lead to nothing but "hash." However, from such odds and ends, tintured with careful student observation of themselves and their elders and sparked by an infusion of shiny ideals, a savory and piquant dish emerged which led the staff to decide a real motif had finally been "cooked up."

Success, the student group agreed, goes "way back to the beginnings, back to the first things, back to the family, and the community, and the school." The forward urge, they felt, comes from first impressions, from early contacts with whatever is strictly high-grade. As a base for success our students called for homes "where children are loved, but not spoiled"; a community "that is clean and well-ordered, with officials and leaders whom our youth can respect because they are honest and moral"; a community "that furnishes full employment and a high standard of living"; and a school "that prepares youth for living in a changing world." In picture and text the staff presents the story of the school year around this central idea.

Three seniors face the triple question of Success, Money, and The Future with speculative attitude as to the triple answers: Gail Masterman and Susan Rainey (seated); James Dyke, standing.

MONEY

Coin of the realm passes over the counter between Janys Mann and Deborah Ward, a student clerk at Anderson's Confectionery Store. Both girls realize that money is important only because it is a "measure of value" and a "medium of exchange."

Is Money Success?

STANDARD OF LIVING?

Shopper-wise, Susan Rainey is pointing out to Janet Randall the fruits that contain the needed vitamins and calories. In Consumer Education Class the girls learned how to judge the quality of fruit and to choose fruits in season.

Or Truth, Mercy, Justice,

Margaret Eastman assembles the model of the United Nations Building which she purchased as a delegate of the local Odd Fellows' United Nations Pilgrimage For Youth, 1955.

I.O.O.F. UNITED NATIONS PILGRIMAGE FOR YOUTH

Chosen in competition from a group of L. F. H. S. sophomores and juniors, Margaret Eastman left on the U. N. Pilgrimage trip sponsored by the local I. O. O. F. during July, 1955. Mrs. Mildred Wright, local Rebekah, was leader of the Maine "pilgrims." While at the United Nations, the group toured the building, saw the beautiful rooms and art treasures, visited council, assembly and several committees in session, listened in on the multi-language receivers, heard a Somaliland speaker protest some injustice to his people, and were thrilled at the global significance of the trip. Instructive guided tours of Manhattan and nearby areas were provided. Since her return Margaret has spoken often to local groups and neighboring lodges. She was further honored by being chosen as a featured speaker at the State I. O. O. F. Assembly in Bangor in November.

I.O.O.F. representatives, Mr. Claude Edwards and Mrs. Mildred Wright, local lodge leaders, inspect with interest the data collected by their delegate of the U.N. Pilgrimage. Scrapbook and tour pamphlets were abundant. Mrs. Wright accompanied the Maine delegates, as their state leader.

Welfare of Human Race?

Adding "giving to give-me" keeps this Commercial Club committee busy. The girls are decorating the club Christmas tree and assembling the boxes of food, clothing and toys destined to make a local family happier at Yuletide. Left to right, Lila Lucarelli, Annette Pomerleau, Barbara Crawford, and Meredith Brown.

Packing several bags of clothing, their donations to August flood sufferers, pleases these juniors who realize that "every hungry child, every ill-housed family, from Calcutta to Chicago, may represent a potential threat to World Peace."

Schools Should Guide,

TEACHERS HELP TOO

A hard point in the lesson is clarified by Miss Hunt, who helps Everett Sanborn understand a difficult exercise in French composition.

Develop Skills, Arts,

Good Future Citizens

SKILL IN LANGUAGE ARTS

Helping us to discover new worlds, the texts, reference books of travel and adventure, biographies, plays and novels must be read and pondered in the light of our own times. Because the world is about community size now (with another nation almost as close as the next town was, not so many years ago), the decisions we make will be momentous.

During their senior year commercial course students are required to read one or more books concerning business manners, vocabulary, and speech. Robert Henry and Barbara Crawford are examining this special library on the book shelves in the typing room.

Through Varied Reading.

At the compound microscope Margaret Eastman examines the infinitesimal world, perhaps trying to wrest more secrets from nature and make the inevitable comparisons of microcosm and macrocosm.

In the non-laboratory course, Science of Daily Living, freshmen study a unit in good grooming. Jane Adams and Gail Bamford demonstrate a technique to improve personal appearance.

Lower panel (left) Charles Leadbetter and Gloria Dube (left to right) chat with Mrs. Griffin and illustrate the very high standard of student courtesy toward faculty (and vice versa); Ella Mae Gordon, Richard Amero, and Dale Warren (right panel) demonstrate correct teenage etiquette, because "getting along with people" in school may lead eventually to global unity.

College English for freshmen seeks to train students to develop good recitation procedures and expertness of execution. Such components of the good recitation as posture, poise, extensive vocabulary, correct language form, and organized thinking are stressed. John Moore, Diann Chase, Diana Niles, and Paul Miller listen to Tommy Masterman's book report.

Good Reciting, Good Listening,

Freshman Scouts join in the pledge of allegiance to our flag, because loyalty is another of the keys to personal success.

Good Citizens,

"How much so many owe to so few" is well illustrated by the historic documents of our country. Ada Lyman and Allan Perry of the junior U. S. History class examine one of the foundations of our liberties, The Declaration of Independence.

Understanding Fundamentals,

Maps! Maps! Maps! Our place in the world, as apparent in map study, is being demonstrated by Ella Mae Gordon, standing before the "Top of the World" map. "Pan-American Highway," as well as "Growth of the United States," are maps included in this map series of the Western Hemisphere, which Mary Brown and Donalee Wheeler are inspecting in U. S. History (Junior General).

Knowledge of language structure is an essential to high success, as great thinkers from Demosthenes to Lincoln and Churchill have demonstrated. Faye Bamford of Miss Hunt's (Junior General) English Class is explaining to Lois Jackman that "me" is indeed the indirect object of the verb.

Developing Responsibility.

TICKET SALES

Student chairman of all ticket sales, Gail Masterman, explains to her aides, L to R, Frances Kowalzyk, Marilyn Kowalzyk, and Judy Barclay (as seen through the ticket window), that careful marking of tickets, checking of stub numbers, and handling of cash is essential for success in this important student activity which is advised by Submaster Merrill.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Meredith McClure, assisting with school health program, checks weight of Robert Fournier who, with all other freshman, is given physical examination by Dr. Eastman. Mrs. Murray is in attendance during the exams, and student assistants help with the program.

Health Promoted

Amid noon-lunch fraternizing a student occasionally steals a look at a book. William Allen and Ceylon Barclay are congenial table mates in this picture.

At the serving window, upper right, sophomores Noella Castonguay, Janice Lowell, Elaine Rea, and Sandra Gallant get bumper-size servings from cafeteria assistant, Mrs. Faye Steward. The student meal ticket costs twenty-five cents.

Learning to know and like the essential foods is part of the school cafeteria training program at Livermore Falls. The type A school lunch furnishes foods from each of the basic seven food groups. All nutrients that young people need, minerals, vitamins, and the calories required for growth and energy are provided in the daily menus served at the school's cafeteria. Through example, too, the teachers and lunchroom helpers teach students politeness and manners within the lunchroom at the time the lunch tickets are collected, and when the service of food is provided at the counter. Mrs. Florence Beaulieu is cafeteria supervisor.

By Education - Minded Community,

Bus service is another of the modern conveniences an education-minded community furnishes the school population. The cameraman caught these bus students ready to leave school at night.

Desiring Student Success

Camera fans in upper picture focus on the Mystery Man, the "most likely to succeed", the Man of the Future. Joy Chicoine, Meredith Brown, and Sally Deane train cameras on the masked enigma.

Seniors, faculty, and freshmen bid adieu to another day and leave for home to gather fresh energy for tomorrow's tasks.

In After School Years.

Is it surprise or glee with which Richard Pelletier regards that fascinating date, Commencement Day, June 14, 1956? Maybe he simply thinks, "Where does time ever go to?" or "Why wasn't I busier this year?"

Would that all students could honestly say, "Each day we have brought to the necessary task our full effort; we have met the challenge; each year gives its reward for work well done!" Our serious graduates, Meredith Brown and Robert Henry, realize that Commencement marks another beginning.

CROSS SECTION OF THE STUDENT BODY

And so what of the members of the cast? What of their part in the continuing epic of humankind? What do they think of success? Students, teachers, and parents participate in the round-robin on this page.

"Is being the most popular," asks one student, "or the prettiest, the best-dressed, and at the head of everything success?" "To have my own little home, to raise a family happily that I could put along and be proud of through life (as a successful father would) seems best to me," enthused one senior boy. "The young child playing with her dolls dreams of a snug-knit family." "Mrs. Success doesn't always drive down Park Avenue in a mink coat; she may walk to her chain store market on Main Street." "If not gifted in books, I must work at my vocation, because I know the world needs me." "The common weary-day accomplishments are important," and "Some of the poorest people in the world have the most in the bank." "We must have friends and be well-liked, not to be alone in the world." "Setting a good example is important because somebody may be watching your life, and if you fail he will get discouraged too." One must "have faith in himself because things are not always going to be easy, more likely will be hard." "Get a well-spoken-of-name because of honesty, dependability, and industry." "A law-abiding spirit is an asset to a community with good, straight, honest officials; for criminals must not lurk in the dark alleys nor sit in high places." "Our nation was founded by men who worked for the good of all and not just for themselves. If we fail to be a part of what is going on, our precious freedoms will be lost." "Good leaders and good followers are needed. The successful man should not always want to be the hero, himself; he should think of how much has been done for him." The perfectionist student "does not stop with one success but goes on to another triumph." "He has great dreams and initiates needed changes courageously, even if his neighbors think he's wrong." "A child must be really successful within himself, learn the difference between the true and the false, the good and the evil. It is easy, when young, to get false ideas about the real meaning of life. There are pitfalls, rivers to cross, and mountains to climb. But use the 'sword of victory and run the villains through' until you stand on the Mountain of Success, having gained truth, honesty, loyalty, and all the good and right things of life."

Teachers and parents were completely in accord with these lofty ideas. "The successful man is an honest man. He wastes no effort in trying to be on guard lest he trap himself in his own lies." "He knows that failures often teach a lesson from which he may profit and learns how even such conditions may be stepping stones to higher ground." "He must be moral; otherwise he does not command respect from those around him; he realizes that the evils which have undermined great nations can undermine the individual. Such a person does not drift, but he trains his habits and educates his mind." "Success is that inner feeling of pride and happiness that comes from attaining worthwhile goals." "The successful person has a respect for his own work, and self-respect in work, play, and life with others." "Such standards have developed through the centuries as a result of human experience; one who flouts standards breaks down the ladder which humankind has so laboriously climbed to its present civilization."

Dedicated and Humble,

SPRAGUE R. WHITNEY

LONG-TIME L. F. H. S. TEACHER RETIRES

Mr. Sprague R. Whitney, twenty-eight years submaster at L. F. H. S. and science and math teacher for college course students, resigned in June, 1955. During his stay at L. F. H. S. Mr. Whitney had gained great prestige as a teacher. He was not only a master of subject matter, but possessed that rarer ability to impart his knowledge to his classes in crystal-clear explanation and in well-organized demonstration. He was a taskmaster who did not counsel the easy way. He demanded of his boys and girls their best effort, always a challenge to the superior student. Laggards at class work knew that they faced stern censure, and thus were spurred on to the keen competition that life demands as one of the requirements for success. Mr. Whitney was more influential than most teachers in shaping the careers of students, and at L. F. H. S. he was fortunate in the large number of students who became his eager disciples.

A very large farewell reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Whitney at the school cafeteria in June. A tribute, written for the occasion, concluded, "Not only did you develop mastery in the field of the quadratic equation, in expounding the scientific principle or in the conduct of laboratory experimentation; as adviser to activities of the box office, ticket sales, ushers, and Aeronautics Club, you impressed on students what it meant to handle an activity with such thoroughness that the performance of duties could be delegated largely to students who would thereby gain valuable lessons in responsibility and service to their school."

Seeking and Courageous,

Supervising School Committee and Superintendent of Schools. Mr. John Barclay, Supt. Clyde L. Mann, Dr. Charles Eastman (Chairman), Mr. Charles Alvino.

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION AT L. F. H. S., 1955-6

As ever at L.F.H.S., changes in school plant and curriculum were instituted, or were undergoing consideration.

Physical training classes were started in the gym for all L.F.H.S. students and were held during three of the seven periods on alternate days for boys and girls.

Early in the year a project in evaluation was undertaken by the State Department of Education in co-operation with school administration and the L.F.H.S. faculty. Much committee work for teachers ensued and meetings with state personnel occurred before the final evaluation was complete. This project was in accordance with a State Department of Education program of determining a new classification of high schools; it also will become possible for state personnel to advise systematically and concretely the shaping of our high school program.

Another evaluation was carried on at L.F.H.S. during March and April by a group of experts from Columbia University Teachers' College. The latter survey was sponsored by the International Paper Company in all communities in the U. S. A. where its mills operate. The purpose of the latter survey is to determine the use of an educational fund which will be used "to promote education" in its mill communities.

"Education involves more than the mind. It includes the whole nature of a young human being, mental, spiritual, physical, and social." Thus at L. F. H. S. a varied assortment of extra-curricular activities gives a large number of students a second education. Outside the classroom, often contributing strongly to scholastic skills these "doings" range from work on committees and on publications, acting in the school play (whether behind the scenes or before the footlights), to learning and practicing safety rules in Rifle Club drills, demonstrating athletic skills on the field or gym floor, cultivating leisure-time interests, and gaining music appreciation or proficiency in choral or band work. Through these tasks L. F. H. S. students attain that "extra something" which leads to social poise, executive ability, willingness to undertake new responsibilities, all of which mark an approaching adulthood.

The companionship offered by school clubs is beneficial, all students asserted. In clubs they learned about people, how they think and act, what moves them to do as they do. Talking, arguing, agreeing, and disagreeing, students learn how to get on with each other. Homemakers planning a Candlelight Ceremony, Future Farmers working with a hay-baler or practicing for a Conduct of Meeting contest, Future Nurses making Cancer dressings, Dramatic Club students rehearsing a pantomime, Commercial Club selling refreshments at a football game, the strutting Majorettes and Kaydettes — all these show an active school.

These activities, the teachers say, are "tools for success, for through them one learns to live abundantly, to contribute usefully, and to adjust happily." One "learns his responsibilities to society; it is 'learning by doing' in the extra-curricular field. He must get on with his fellowmen and he learns when to yield and when to advance arguments skillfully, so that the majority accepts his own well-planned way of doing a thing." "It is the busy man who has time to do good," says another teacher, "and his talents will be increased, not by burying them, but by putting them to work."

"In the spring a boy may plant a garden. He may watch it grow during the summer months, when he tends and cares for it. In the autumn when he reaps the harvests, the garden is really a success because the boy has had the ability to create," writes one student. "Co-operation is an important factor because we can seldom reach the summit without encouragement and assistance. It is a wonderful feeling to know the 'gang' is backing you up just when you need it. The teachers are willing to put in extra time with you too." "Do not fail to join a school club or two, because in this way you will not feel alone, left out." "The Majorettes learn to twirl their batons in unison and to march together. That is Success and so it is when townspeople work together for a pleasant and friendly town. If we work together in school clubs successfully, we should be able to live happily together in the world on many different levels of race and nationality."

THE BANNER, 1955-56

An aspiring young advertising worker on the yearbook staff must, first of all, be sure, when he makes his business calls, that his appearance is neat because good grooming impresses our patrons. One starts by introducing himself if he does not already know the businessman. By showing him the 1955 Banner, stressing such important points as colored pages and explaining the wide circulation of a large number of copies, the Banner agents convince the advertiser that yearbook ad rates are really not expensive. At all times the business staff tries to make friends, and to ensure selling ads in 1957. The student remembers to thank the businessman for the ad, or if unsuccessful, to thank him for listening. It is important not to waste his time nor to delay staff work.

"What word can we use here?" "Look in Roget's Thesaurus." "Where is the dictionary?" "Is that the correct tense of the verb?" Word choice is only one of the problems that confront the literary committee of The Banner. The committee assigns writing, hopes to discover budding authors, and checks work with the typists.

THE ANDIES' BULLETIN

This student publication is issued monthly by the Commercial Department's third and fourth year students; it has for two years running won the Echo-Lovejoy High School Newspaper Contest, conducted by Colby College, and has received high-honor rating in other contests. The Bulletin informs the students of the major events as well as other happenings about school: club news, sports news, student honors, alumni activities. Literary and editorial columns are printed.

WE SHOOK THE FAMILY TREE

This year's school play, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Griffin, resulted in another popular hit. The drama, "We Shook the Family Tree," is a three-act comedy concerning a sixteen-year-old girl with a vivid imagination that often led her into trouble. Hildegard had to attend Junior Prom with the banker's son, Freddie. Although sixteen, this "mother's little boy" was told to wear knickers to the Prom. How Freddie escaped such a fate with the help of Hildegard was amusingly related by the actors in "We Shook the Family Tree."

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

Another session of the Dramatic Club begins when the president commands, "The meeting will now come to order." At meetings held every fortnight, the club presents varied programs. Whether presenting pantomimes or gingerly applying make-up on some hapless club member, the group always has a good time. Christmas and St. Valentine's Day are celebrated with lively parties. Refreshments are enjoyed; games are played with great enthusiasm. With funds accumulated from club dues, the members are able to attend two plays: one at Lakewood, the other a dramatic presentation by a college or a high school play in this area.

WHAT DOES THE COMMERCIAL CLUB DO?

What doesn't the Commercial Club do? That is the question. The club has helped the school in many ways. It has purchased many new machines and other equipment for the Commercial Department. The club meets each Friday; ways and means of adding to its treasury are discussed; entertainment is also provided for every meeting by a program committee.

Annually for some years now, the club has made at least one family happier at Christmas time by giving its members boxes heaped with clothing and toys. A basket of food is sent, also a chicken, which is bought with club funds, as a guarantee of a good dinner.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Brown, Adviser, the Commercial Club sells refreshments at football and basketball games; club committees sell Christmas cards; earrings and corsages are made by members of the club at Christmas time; candy is sold every noon. No wonder club members are very busy and the club treasury is never empty.

SENIOR WASHINGTON TRIP

This year the Washington Trippers were very successful in their attempt to raise tour funds. Among their financial projects were a Hunter's Breakfast, a Car-Wash, a Bottle Drive, Magazine Drive, Paper Drive, Christmas Tree Sale, and Spaghetti Feed. All these projects netted a tidy sum because parents and townspeople took an interest in the senior trip.

The seniors, themselves, exuded energy; special committees worked hard and were present at all project work. It made little difference whether they had to report for duties during the day, night, or early morning as at the Hunter's Breakfast, when preparations started at 2 a.m. and meal service at 2:30 a.m. When cooking had to be done, the girls took over (except for the Spaghetti Feed). Yet boys were not idle, as they were the waiters at all events. The Senior Class is, and always has been, a group of very active students.

On the tour this year the seniors will see the Washington Monument, Statue of Liberty, Arlington Cemetery, Gettysburg, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Radio City, Capitol Building, and Smithsonian Institute. The trip, as usual, will be both highly educational and a lot of fun.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

A woman's future? Perhaps it lies just as much in the hands of the homemakers as with our business and professional women, for truly the homemaker is coming to be considered professional today. The FHA club at L. F. H. S. has been sponsoring chapter degrees to promote homemaking and inter-school-home co-operation. Whether it be sending boxes of clothes to needy countries, or conducting food sales to meet club expenses, the FHA is ever active. The club is now planning to start such projects as first aid, sewing, and good grooming. Such activities can be helpful to club members today and in the future, and aid in personality development, in creating hobbies, and in making life more interesting.

CHRISTMAS CORSAGES. Using imagination to create corsages that are artistic and beautiful, a threesome of FHA girls are at work in an activity period. The corsages are used as gifts, or for personal accessories. L to R, Anita Roy, Carole Hubbard, Louise Filteau.

To Undertake Responsibilities,

Future Homemaker officers are, L to R, standing, Annette Chicoine, treasurer; Janys Mann, parliamentarian; Lois Jackman, reporter; Marla Mann, second vice-president; Ella Mae Gordon, historian; Janet Wagner, first vice-president; Louise Filteau, secretary. Seated, Mrs. Phyllis Ambrose, adviser; Anita Roy, president. The FHA Executive Council, composed of these officers, meets once a month to plan future meetings. The officers discuss and practice parliamentary procedure, so that they may become more effective leaders.

FHA Christmas Party. Nancy Lyman, Laurali Meserve, and Dorothy McLaughlin are making the club Christmas tree bright and sparkling; the tree is tipped with a Christmas angel, too.

The annual winter meeting of the Southern District Association of Future Farmers was held at Leavitt Institute, February 1, 1956. In the contests L. F. H. S. stood first in Conduct of Meeting; and in Tool Identification George Young and James Hewett placed first as a team (Hewett winning second place as individual); in Rope Splicing Llewellyn Lyman stood first as individual; in Seed Identification, George Lamb and Roy Bamford placed second as a team (Bamford tied for first place as individual); the Rafter Cutting team placed first, and in Shop Supply Linton Quirrion and David Punch won second place as a team.

Facing a problem of earning sufficient money to carry on its program of worthwhile activities, the Port Royal Chapter of Future Farmers of America decided to buy a field hay baler. A New Holland engine-powered No. 66 baler was purchased. During the haying season the FFA boys baled over four hundred tons of hay for about thirty farmers in the Livermore-Livermore Falls district.

The project served three main purposes: it helped finance club activities; it offered a service to many small farmers in the vicinity; in the operating, maintaining, and servicing of the machine a school educational project was fostered.

USHERS. "Third seat in the fourth row, this way, sir." Undoubtedly our ushers help to make successful the school play, Junior Night, and Commencement Exercises. Sharply dressed in suits, ties, with hair neatly combed and shoes polished, the ushers always give the appearance of success so vital to the enterprising young man of today. Incidentally they gain experience in meeting the public.

The girls, especially, are in a flurry two or three weeks ahead of the event, because the whole class takes part in Junior Night. Deciding which color of gown to buy and a million other "little" things keep them busy. The colorful array of evening gowns, balanced by the more sober colors of the boys' suits, creates a spectacle to please devoted parents and friends.

Class members entertain the audience with a program of musical numbers and short plays. The 1955 program included songs presented by the Junior Class chorus, a duet by Richard Mercier and Joy Chicoine, a guitar solo by Llewellyn Lyman, and two short plays which starred members of the Junior Class.

JUNIOR PROM

What is the spring event that starts many young hearts to skipping a beat? The annual Prom in May, of course! On that glamorous evening after the group photography is finished and the reception ceremonial is over, the officers of the Junior Class lead the Grand March. During the march all couples drop coins in the wishing well, hoping even the most impossible wishes will be granted. Then the evening settles down to a schedule of waltzes and foxtrots, frequent trips to the punch table, and finally a post-midnight snack at local eating places or at McNamara's, Chick-A-Dee or Lone Pine.

CAREER DAY

Chicken and dairy farming, orcharding, store management, armed forces, optometry, University and State Teacher's College, office work, foundry, law, health and welfare, dentistry, salesmanship, TV servicing, carpentry, pharmacy, beauty schools, nursing, and many other occupations "had their day" at L. F. H. S., when a group of thirty speakers discussed professions and trades with students. Students were interested in testing aptitudes, chances of employment, changing business conditions, and were fascinated by the many glimpses into the adult business world. Speakers explained "opportunities for a well-rounded life of service and satisfaction in helping others." They also said that academic skills are necessary for college, and spoke of the iron will versus the I. Q., emphasizing that the employee must meet competition to be advanced; all in all, many words of wisdom were heard. One member of the Class of 1956 later commented, "Career Day gives one a wonderful feeling of being needed somewhere in this world."

THE GLEE CLUB

After a sharp series of quick taps from Mr. Whitten's directing baton, a typical beginning of a Glee Club session, over one hundred L. F. H. S. students are ready to sing.

The students enjoy the new music which has been purchased. Such hit tunes as "He" and "Autumn Leaves" head the list. Nevertheless the old favorites are not forgotten, for the quick tempo of "Russian Picnic" and "Oklahoma" puts the group in lively spirits. Other serious numbers such as "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Sanctus" are sung with great feeling.

The Glee Club participates in exchange assemblies with other high schools and takes part in the Western Maine Music Festival.

THE ORCHESTRA

"May we have an A, please?" This is the beginning of another rehearsal of the orchestra. After a year's lapse of time it seemed good to audiences, as well as students, to welcome back this musical group to L. F. H. S. During activity period on Fridays one can pass the gym and hear fragmentary strains from such school favorites as "Romaine" and "Soldiers' March."

Because orchestral music "in a quiet mood" was needed for indoor activities, the L. F. H. S. orchestra was revived. Since a decided lack of stringed instruments exists, perhaps an S. O. S. for strings should be sounded to the grade students who would give good service to the school by choosing violin or bass viol as instruction instruments.

POPULAR BOYS' QUARTET

The three juniors in this picture started singing together in their freshman year. Besides singing at school affairs, the services of the quartet have been greatly in demand at church, grange, and lodge affairs. The boys sing at dances and at reunions of various sorts; they were heard on a radio program shortly after Christmas this year. All their numbers are sung a cappella. The boys are all active members of the school and town bands.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Talks about physical fitness and health guidance from instructors, Miss Rhodenizer and Mr. Puiia, preceded the first physical education classes held at L. F. H. S. Besides gymnastic drills and tumbling practice, the girls play volleyball, basketball, and softball. They are enjoying the square dance instruction and practice.

Boys begin each physical education period by running five laps around the gym, then go on to gymnastic drill, tumbling, boxing, and wrestling. Occasionally an obstacle course is set up for the boys, involving different games and an endurance test. Basketball, volleyball, and indoor baseball are important games in the physical education program. Students are grouped according to their physical makeup and stamina.

That "hard-to-get" rhythm in early days of Phys Ed classes for girls was a cause of bewilderment, despair, merriment, or what-have-you (upper panel). Below, the boys find exact timing difficult.

THE RIFLE CLUB

This year the club started with many new members, chiefly freshmen. As usual in club meetings, safety is discussed and safe handling of firearms under all conditions demonstrated (home care, transportation on range, and in the woods). The N. R. A. program is outlined. The boys are shown correct sight-pictures for the various combinations of sights. Posture, position, breathing and trigger-squeeze are pictured, demonstrated, and then tried out. Correct and safe range practices are taught and enforced under penalty of summary dismissal.

At the Tuesday night shoots most effort is spent on self-improvement. Ultimately a large number of badges are won by club members. Every session ends with a little off-hand competition among rifleman present. Teams are elected; targets are fixed and scored on the spot. A shoulder-to-shoulder match with Jay is scheduled and other matches will be arranged before June.

BASEBALL, 1955

Amid the usual signs of spring, mud, water, showers, and more showers, the school's call for candidates for the great national pastime was issued. Because of construction going on, Griffin Memorial Field was not available, which meant practice sessions had to be held at Dow Field. All games were played on opponents' fields. This condition started the season off to the disadvantage of L. F. H. S., although, at first, prospects looked bright. Only 15 boys tried out for the team. This scarcity of material plus an injury to our Ace chucker, Tink Wagner, contributed to the disastrous results. Although inexperienced, the Andies in many ways held their own with their opponents. Without an experienced battery the team was outclassed eventually.

TRACK

Revived at L. F. H. S. after a long inactive period, track is now the school's youngest sport. Because of lack of equipment no meets with other schools were held last year. Luckily for the sport, most of the boys who are pictured on this page are underclassmen and will probably report for practice this year. The team attended a practice meet with Jay High School.

As of now, L. F. H. S. has no official track but it is hoped space will be found for one soon. The 100-yard-dash men use the football field, while the other runners use a quarter-mile strip staked off around the football field. The squad is also hoping for new equipment, including javelins, discs and hurdles.

Coach Puia states that, if more fellows go out for practice and show interest in the sport, scheduled meets will be planned. Track will then become a "letter" sport, event-winners receiving their track letter. Members of the track group feel sure that if they should get the necessary equipment, and an enlarged squad should try out, victories could be chalked up at future meets.

FOOTBALL, 1955

L. F. H. S. opened its season with a nine game schedule, playing their up-river rivals in the first game at home. In the opening game the Jay Tigers gave L. F. H. S. a solid trouncing, 31-0.

Playing their third game on the Farmington field, the Andies were successful, 13-7. Early in the game a pass interception with a few quick plays accounted for the first touchdown. L. F. H. S. blocking, running, and tackling were sharp and efficient. The second touchdown came on a pass from Binette to Davis. Farmington scored on an Andies' fumble.

The Andies played a good game at South Paris. Due to the absence of three or four starters, only eleven men were used. Aaron White played a beautiful defensive game. The Andies played a six to six tie, using mainly freshmen and sophomores who gave a good account of themselves.

With the season nearing an end, the Andies played Wilton in water and mud. Again they were defeated (7-6) in a close, hard fought game.

The closing game of the season in which six L. F. H. S. seniors played their last high school game was at Jay. The team was snowed under by the Tigers, 42-0. Lack of eager, qualified reserves and large, gaping weaknesses in the front line accounted for L. F. H. S. lack of success during this season.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL, 1955—56

The Andiettes had a rather poor season, but showed improvement toward the end. Losing only two players in the starting lineup this year, prospects for next year look good, especially with so many interested freshmen out for practice. After-school intramurals, in which the "top seven" basketball girls acted as coaches and referees, closed the season.

BOYS' BASKETBALL, 1955-56

With much enthusiasm the season began. About forty boys were out for practice. L. F. H. S. defeated Leavitt in the first game scheduled. The team's first loss was to Jay..

A second defeat was later administered by Jay, but by a fairly close score, 63 to 57. Up to this time the L. F. H. S. record stood 8 wins, 1 loss. The team won the next two games, taking its third defeat from South Paris. In its first game with South Paris, the hometeam came from behind in the final period to overcome a twenty-one point enemy lead. The final score stood 77-76, with Liver-more edging out South Paris. Sadly enough the next day the Andies went to South Paris, only to lose a game in which until the very end, L. F. H. S. led. The Andies' final record was 11 wins, three defeats.

In the regional tournament Wilton was defeated by L. F. H. S. very easily by a score of 63 to 43, but in the finals the team lost again to Jay. The defeat was a heartbreaker, as Livermore lost by a single point, 51 to 50.

On the whole the season was one of the most successful in a number of years.

"Is one lucky to get away from books, and rules, and teachers?" asks one student. "No, I can't waste time fooling around, and looking out of windows, if I am to go to college," responds another. Certain students think they "worry too much about tests, finishing the book report, adding long columns of figures in bookkeeping, mastering the geometry problem, or learning conjugations of Latin verbs," but "to gain success one must have the intelligence to listen and the will to learn." "He must do often the things he doesn't like to do. If a subject 'comes hard' to him, he should sacrifice movies, a T-V program, a dance, or a date in order to do homework." "One thing is sure, he will not be successful if he studies as little as he has to; he should do a 'little extra,' a little more than he has been asked to do."

"Success is everywhere; we see it in our automobiles, homes, offices, factories, schools, in science and medicine, and in the smiling face of a child. Because the United States has enjoyed living standards unknown to other countries, Americans are successful people. I must try to understand the 'why' of this, so that the 'how to do it' will be assured for all time. Is American success due to toleration and to a democratic government always growing more democratic? Is it our individual liberties? Do competition in school and in business, as well as the right to buy in a relatively free market, make us more enterprising?"

Other students urge that it is necessary to "finish the job," "look for proof and don't fall for propaganda," "overcome fear by doing the thing you fear, and above all be confident of yourself," "treat your fellow-citizens with respect at all times," "feel friendship for foreign countries and help other nations in need," "improve in ability to express yourself more clearly." Among virtues our students find important are Leadership, Loyalty, Faith and Spirituality, Sense of Humor, Respect for Law, Patience, Tact, Cleanliness, Striving for Beauty, and Humility.

Teacher opinion stresses "support of worthwhile causes," "helping in community affairs," "reasonable ambition and self-support," "fine relations with others, a code of morals, and principles to believe in," "excellence in the required skills, personal traits that employers want." "The school's constant emphasis must be on accuracy and thoroughness, constantly going on to higher levels of performance." "To be successful and happy in later life, boys and girls must discipline themselves. To discipline oneself means to learn. Perhaps the essential steps in learning — effort and drill — cannot be sugar-coated." "There is needed much moral courage to stand up and be counted, to espouse the unpopular cause, to fight for what one knows to be good and right and true, regardless of consequences." "It is only in a moral community and world that there is security."

The Plot - Classrooms

Only faithful students can unmask the "six honest serving men," Who, What When, Where, How, and Why. See next page for the unraveling of this riddle.

To Understand "Why" and "How",

WHERE? In discussing current events, students and teachers turn to the map because comprehension is incomplete unless one knows the place where it all happened. Mr. Puiia, Robert Fournier, and Janet Wagner locate one of the trouble spots of the world (left panel).

WHEN? On or before April 15th each year, most adults are lucky enough to make a fiscal report to Uncle Sam on the subject of income. This is due to the famous U. S. standard of living, which is a measure of our national success. Conning over the income tax forms are future taxpayers, Tom Conley, Ceylon Barclay (seated), and Richard Amero.

HOW? Consumers must learn how, if they are to get full value for their dollar. A class in Consumer Education mounted a collection of canned food labels. The labels were discussed and assessed to show "best values." James Johnston and Susan Rainey display labels.

"A report, oral or written, must be accurate, clear, concise, and interesting," says a freshmen composition book. Kipling's "six honest serving-men," What, Why, When, Who, Where, and How, must be put to use regularly. In reading, in studying, in explaining, in note taking, we should call upon all of the "honest serving men" to help us note the things we ought to know in our reading because such details aid in the problem of "reading for comprehension." In upper picture (page 98) Who is represented by Mary Lou McIver, What by Betty Whittemore, When by Louise Filteau, Where by Leona Yates, How by Mary Lou Richmond, Why by Janice Lowell. This group of sophomore students in World History prepared all costume details and placard props for the picture.

WHY? What is the reason for the supremacy of the United States among the nations of the world? A study of the Constitution of the United States reveals that the three departments of government—executive, legislative, and judicial—"check and balance" each other without any one branch becoming all powerful. The result is not a weak government either, as U. S. supremacy in so many fields proves.

So That Future Success Is Assured

French records give extra drill on the language's sounds and inflections. Roland Chretien tends the record player, while Marilyn Kowalzyk and Patty LaBrecque follow the speech by reading the same section in the text book. Elaine Rea (standing) and Diana Dow (in lower picture) follow the text also, to note the true pronunciation of words in the French reading.

Cartoon work in U. S. History (college division). Carolyn Keith points to her interpretation of a situation in the century-long struggle between England and France for the mastery of a continent. The rich Ohio Valley was a tempting prize to both countries, and the situation was "full of dynamite" as a public question in the 1750's.

The daily newspaper must be read by students who are to be well-informed, because a knowledge of current events in their world background is a necessity, if one is to have a well-balanced education. Standing, L to R, Robert Crawford, Donald Richard. Seated, Marilyn Judd, Nancy Lyman, Meredith McClure (lower picture).

Must Be Goal Of School, Of

VOCABULARY To attain a more active vocabulary is a primary aim of education. Many experts consider the possession of an extensive vocabulary one of the true tests of intelligence. In order to make his stock of words keep pace with his needs, a student must take an active, personal interest in enlarging his vocabulary. A "vocabulary tournament" is in progress in the upper picture, in which the teacher acts as umpire. L to R, Jane Adams, Wayne Lewis, Pauline Collins, Miss Rhodenizer, Louise LaBrecque, Rodney Stanley, and Judy Brown.

PRONOUNS AND VERBS Donald Putman is pointing out to Louise Filteau a verb error and explaining that such errors result from a misunderstanding of the principal parts of the verb—a confusion of the past tense and the past participle. One must also know the "case" in order not to make pronoun errors, as one of the corrected sentences indicates. "Higher education" demands the use of correct language in addition to the knowledge of what is correct.

Student, And Of All Education.

Words that a student misspells in letters and written assignments advertise his faulty spelling habits. Do we confuse our readers? Do we lower ourselves in their estimation? Diana Niles is checking off the incorrectly spelled words in this list.

RESEARCH WORK IN SENIOR ENGLISH. Standing, L to R, Larry Franchetti, Willian Binette. Seated, Percy Perkins, Joane Diaz, Joy Chicoine, James Dyke. Students are consulting library books in preparation for writing themes based on investigation.

Intelligence To Listen,

Will To Learn

Copying financial statements for her work in senior bookkeeping is Joan Yeaton, seated at her classroom typewriter.

The record player, tended by Elaine Poulin (right), is of great help to senior typing students. Marjorie Whittemore and Judy Barclay listen acutely to the dictation. This exercise demonstrates how students work up individual speed (upper panel). In lower panel Simonne Chretien shows how the dictaphone is used in the commercial classroom.

Donald Putnam and Janet Wagner (below) are using the adding-machines to complete their budget sheets.

CARE COLLECTION

In a drive for funds for overseas' use the history classes were sparked by Chairman Willie Dube, ex-G.I. and $103.00 was collected and sent to Italy. This money provided 2266 pounds of food to help the needy, and to fight Communism. The gift called forth a note of thanks from Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Director of the Washington CARE office who wrote, "I can't resist sending you a personal note of gratitude for your very generous contribution. . . . Your gift is a wonderful gesture of good will. . . . a tribute to your human warmth and understanding." In the picture (seated) are Willie Dube and Shirley West. Standing, L to R, Ceylon Barclay, Carolyn Keith, and Betty Whittemore who served as class chairmen for the collection. Starr Nelke, who was also very active, is not pictured.

In upper panel picture, page 107, Sandra Rich is noting the freezing point of water, using cracked ice, salt, test tube, thermometer in the quart container. Center, William Binette is showing the apparatus and the method of making nitric acid to Larry Franchetti, Sally Deane, and James Dyke. Although Charles Strout (below) doesn't mind dissecting the rabbit, the girls are not so enthusiastic. Barbara Fournier is forced to cover her eyes, while Sheila Gallant is rather "stand-offish", preferring her textbook diagrams to closer contact with the real animal.

That One Must Do Things Often

Proper "wheel turn" to enter the school garage is being practiced by Vernal Lavoie who is sighting" for an exact entrance.

He Does Not Wish To Do

Connie Fournier consented to pose for this illustration of the negligent young lady who is thinking languidly, "How do you conjugate that French verb anyway?"

Hands Are Servants Of The Mind;

Pattern Important! When selecting their patterns and materials, girls at L. F. H. S. consider design, texture, and color suitable to the figure and personality; then the garment is constructed by approved methods. Because their coats, dresses, skirts, and slacks cost them much less than the same quality in ready-to-wear garments, the girls are delighted. Janice Kelley is seated at the sewing machine; Glenda Yeaton is unpinning a pattern, while Beverly Luce (standing at left) is modeling her jacket so Betty Whittemore may fit a sleeve of the garment.

The cash-and-carry, self-service, and detailed food labeling advantages are scrutinized by Janet Randall as she shops in an L. F. grocery store.

Brazing a muffler with the gas welding equipment is the project of the day. Mr. Crouse watches that Rene Bibeau and George Young may learn all the fine points of this useful task in farm mechanics (right panel).

Higher Training Develops Mind,

Roy Bamford and Bruce Gray are heating and shaping metal with the oxy-acetylene torch, as a Farm Mechanics project in Agriculture.

Constructing a truck body in Aggie Shop. Llewellyn Lyman, Ceylon Barclay, and Robert Barker are learning use of tools in farm construction work (left panel). Donald Pomeroy Glendon Drake, Merle Gile, are constructing nests for laying hens as a project in Agriculture (right panel).

Edward Black and Wayne Lewis are constructing hen feeders for use in home projects (left panel). With the table-saw George Lamb and Roger Jacques are squaring stock to uniform length in preparation for their home project construction.

For Mind Is Master. Mind Must Be

Blue Print and Model Making. Larry Lucarelli and Robert Storer are running off duplicate blue prints of a scale drawing that Larry made originally as an Industrial Arts Project. The model on the table was made to scale from the blue print. After graduation Larry plans to construct from this model his own restaurant, which will feature drive-in service, as well as table and stool service. The restaurant will be 40 x 30 ft. with a concrete patio, 36 x 10 ft. A raised bandstand will be built on the small dance floor in the diningroom.

The blue print is a scale drawing even to door, windows, and concrete patio; the model on the table was also constructed to exact scale. The blue prints are made by electro-chemical development.

Enriched By Serious Intellectual

Ronald Farrington (right) is showing the assembling of a drawer in cabinet construction in Industrial Arts Classes.

Activity and Scholastic Disciplines.

MY TASK

*I have a task that I today will try.
Success or failure may befall, I know;
But this I'll try. So upward I must go
And prove, alone, that I can soar and fly
Upward, onward, forward mounting*

Carolyn Keith '57

L. F. H. S. Valedictorian of the Class of 1956, Gail Masterman, is pictured as she may have looked when taking her National Merit Scholarship Corporation Test. The fact that, with five thousand other young Americans, Gail was a final runner-up for a Merit Scholarship is a matter of pride to her school and to the community.

The President of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, John M. Stalnaker wrote, "The competition was keen. The honor you have won gives evidence that you were one of the best in the nation. Our interest in you will continue, and we wish you every success."

We Salute You!

Congratulations and the best of luck! We at Loring are proud of the part we have had in helping to make your classbook a permanent reminder of your school years, recording with photographs one of the happiest and most exciting times of your life! We hope that, just as you have chosen us as your class photographer, you will continue to think of Loring Studios when you want photographs to help you remember other momentous days to come! "EVERY WORKER A COMPANY PARTNER"

We, the employees of Livermore Shoe Company, are "Partners in Progress" with our management. This isn't just a slogan, it is a practice, and every day our teamwork can be seen in action.

Company management really went all out to give employees the best of everything. Not satisfied to keep the plant and machinery modern only, management has also given workers numerous advantages. First, the Senate Council and the Profit-Sharing Plan were installed. The Senate Council is formed of employees from every department, and is elected democratically each year by ballot. The Council meets regularly with management to compare ideas and to discuss and act upon suggestions. It keeps the employees informed about the profit-sharing plan. Through the Profit-Sharing Plan, the employees share in 30% of the Company profits before taxes. Checks are distributed semi-annually. Livermore Shoe is the only shoe manufacturing plant in Maine offering this plan to its employees.

Next the company provided its employees with Blue Cross and Blue Shield Insurance, giving 100% coverage at no cost to the employee. Again the Company is the only shoe manufacturing plant in Maine to offer employees this advantage, which alone does a lot to give workers a feeling of security.

Management then encouraged employees to set up their own credit union, which was done. Operated by employees, the credit union is a means of solving financial problems among employees who, at the same time, cultivate the habit of saving regularly.

Finally, to show that management thinks of everything, a housing project is being planned now. For a great many workers, this means that what was once a distant dream can become a reality soon. It is hoped that by early summer, the building project will get under way. Imagine! A house built to suit personal needs and from a design of one's own choosing. This will be another great saving to the employees, as the houses will be sold at cost.

We, employees of the Livermore Falls Shoe Company, are very proud of our management and should like to take this opportunity to express our gratitude and appreciation to Mr. Ted Poland and Mr. Nat Madow for their close adherence to the American Way of Life.

A Thermostat In Every Room

Choose the exact temperature you want in each individual room. Bedrooms can be cool, bathrooms extra-warm, livingroom just right for relaxing — all at the same time.

Each SelectTemp unit provides an ample volume of heat, and each unit has a sensitive thermostat that can be set for any degree of warmth. It is steady, MODULATED heat — not "on and off" cycling. The heating unit automatically sends in more or less heat to maintain the exact temperature you choose — SelectTemp room units are supplied with heat from a single low-pressure steam boiler. Steam is carried to individual rooms through small flexible copper tubing. THE BOILER ALSO SUPPLIES WATER FOR LAUNDRY, WASHING DISHES, ET CETERA. IT GIVES THREE AND A HALF GALLONS OF HOT WATER PER MINUTE.

How Selectemp Works

The steam heats a small radiator in the unit, a fan distributes filtered, warm air into the room. Temperature is controlled by a thermostat mounted on each unit. OVERHEATING AND UNDERHEATING YOUR ROOM IS ELIMINATED. THERMOSTATS AND FANS ARE NON-ELECTRIC. NO WIRING REQUIRED. Room units are only eighteen inches high and can be painted to match your walls. We have trained servicemen twenty-four hours a day for your protection. We will gladly furnish free estimations on request.

Coleman Blend-Air

Do you see that SMALL THREE-AND-A-HALF-INCH HOT AIR DUCT at the bottom of Picture? This is as large as the unit requires. It makes the installed Coleman Blend-Air the lowest priced forced-hot-air-heat unit on the market today.

Coleman gives a thousand dollar guarantee comfort bond with every installation. Why don't you consult us before you buy? We have expert servicemen available twenty-four hours a day.

Epilogue

"According to Noah Webster, success is a favorable end of a venture," one of our student essayists wrote. "Success is the 'pot of gold' at the end of the rainbow, but is material wealth really the favorable end of a venture?" Perhaps, as Lincoln thought, "Wealth is a superfluity of the things one does not want," or "Success is counted sweetest by those who ne'er succeed," as Emily Dickinson said it.

The yearbook cameraman has, in the 1956 Banner, interpreted views of the student essayists who analyzed the background of success and found in the community and the family the most potent factors; most potent because first impressions endure a lifetime.

The impact of the school in this modern age was also pictured by the photographer, whose finished work ranged from scale drawing and shoemaker's bench to the freezing point of water, the oxy-acetylene torch and New Holland hay-baler; a study of food labels, dress patterns, and budget sheets; drill on the timeless fundamentals of spelling, grammar, vocabulary, math, and maps; the use of record player for typing dictation, as well as for French pronunciation; safe range practice and target scoring; CARE contribution and clothing collection for flood sufferers; a cappella singing, boxing, wrestling, Commencement panel discussion, a Prom wishing-well, and the adult business world as seen by students during Career Day. The importance of careful preparation of lessons and of home work, because emphasized by young essayists, was well covered in photography.

May the two graduates, pictured on our front cover, who are reaching to "adjust the world" attain success! May the death dealing weapons, already obsolete, which surround them recede soon into the mists of man's primitive past, for "Success is everywhere for those who have the intelligence to listen and the will to learn."

Success Is No Will-'O-The-Wisp,

Nor Like Water, Willy-Nilly Flowing
